BOYS DISCUS, HURDLES AND GIRLS 400 TOP 2013 PROSPECTS

A quick look back and then it's time to look ahead.

What can be said about La Costa Canyon's Darren Fahy that hasn't already been said? Only that in years to come his historic 1600-3200 state double gold medal performance will gain in importance. Don't be surprised if he isn't one of the favorites in the 3,000-meter steeplechase at the 2016 Olympic Trials.

When El Camino's Jasmine Gibbs long jumped 20-feet, 11-inches in the Avocado West Finals, everyone expected her to eclipse Gail Devers' section record of 20-6 set in 1984. Since there was no wind gauge at the Avo West meet, the mark did not meet section record standards.

Gibbs got a Devers record, all right, only it was the venerable 100-meter dash mark. Gibbs' 11.43 in the state prelims came with plenty of authentication.

Now, on to 2013.

While there are no state champions returning, there are plenty of events where with just a normal improvement and year of maturity, gold medalists could emerge.

Foremost among those are the boys discus where West Hills' Brenden Song finished with a rush, hitting his personal best of 188-11 in the state finals to capture the silver medal. He will be bigger and stronger in 2013, so look out.

The boys long hurdles also figure to be a hot event with three of the top performers from 2012 returning, led by state finalist Grant Zebold of Cathedral Catholic.

While the girls got shut out in the gold medal chase in 2012, there are numerous events where potential champions could emerge, led by the 400 where defending section champ Alex Hernandez of Mt. Carmel, last year's wunderkind Melissa Mongiovi of West Hills and La Jolla's Karly Zlatic.

While there might not be as much depth, look for the section's pole vaulters to again make noise, led by 16-2 ½ boys performer Kyle Pater of Mt. Carmel and 13-footer Mimi Lian of Rancho Bernardo.

As always, the distance runners should be making some big waves with La Costa Canyon's...(up to 5 more lines)
So sit back and enjoy what should be another exciting season.
